- The bank is prohibited from the business of 'banking' including acceptance and repayment of deposits.
- RBI has also asked the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Pune, Maharashtra, to issue an order for winding up the affairs of the CKP Co-operative Bank Ltd., Mumbai, and appoint a liquidator for the bank.
- This move of RBI has been taken on CKP Co-operative Bank Ltd., Mumbai, because of the adverse and unsustainable financial condition of the bank, as it was not meeting the minimum capital and reserves.
- Also, RBI found that the affairs of the bank were and are being conducted in a manner detrimental to the public interest and interest of the depositors and that the general character of the management of the bank is prejudicial to the interest of depositors as also public interest. Thus, the bank was not following provisions of Section 22 (3)(b) and (c) of the Act. And hence, the license of CKP Co-operative Bank Ltd., Mumbai, was cancelled.

NANOMATERIALS FOR WATER POLLUTION CONTROL— DEVELOPED BY DST INSPIRE

Current Context: A team from INSPIRE, under the Department of Science & Technology (DST), has developed nanomaterials based supercapacitors to achieve high energy density and power density of supercapacitors.

HIGHLIGHTS

- The supercapacitors will help to meet the energy demand due to the growth in the human population and technological advancement that poses a great challenge for human society. The high energy density of supercapacitors suggests that constant current can be withdrawn for longer duration without recharging. With this feature, the automobiles can run longer distances without charging. Supercapacitors can be an alternative for such purposes.
- The team aims to develop novel nanostructures of carbon and metal dichalcogenides (have the ability to achieve high energy density and power density of supercapacitors) semiconductors for photodetection and Surface-Enhanced Raman spectroscopy (SERS).
- This innovation has lead a way for the development of cost-effective and efficient devices, which can be used for energy storage applications.
- The novel nanostructures of carbon will make way for materials that can be used as advanced photodetectors and also be used as optical sensors for water pollution control.

NEW PROCESS FOR SYNTHESIS OF QUANTUM DOTS (QDS)

Current Context: Agharkar Research Institute (ARI), Pune has come up with the development of a new process for the synthesis of quantum efficient and biocompatible quantum dots (QDs).

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

- The process is used to capture images of cellular organelles and processes within the visible wavelength ranges across the electromagnetic spectrum.
- The traditional process for the synthesis of QDs is vulnerable to photobleaching, which has a low signal intensity, and overlapping spectra which restrict their use, particularly in multispectral bioimaging.
- Therefore the newly developed process overcomes these issues.
- In the new process, the QDs are rendered as biocompatible by coating with silicone which provides enhanced quantum efficiency and photostability.
- This will pave the way for cost-efficient production of monodispersed, quantum efficient, photostable, and biocompatible quantum dots that might serve as an excellent alternative to traditional fluorophores.
